A photograph of a traditional Japanese garden (kashiyun). The foreground is dominated by a lush green moss lawn (kashiyun) interspersed with several tall, slender plants bearing purple flowers. To the right, a stone path (ishi-dochi) made of irregular, rounded stones runs along the edge. In the middle ground, a large, weathered rock (ishi) sits on the moss. Behind it, a large, mature pine tree (matsu) with dense green needles stands prominently. To the left, a portion of a traditional Japanese building with a tiled roof is visible. The background shows more trees and a clear sky, suggesting a peaceful, well-maintained garden setting.
